GRAVE RIOTS AS SPANISH ANARCHISTS ANNOUNCE REVOLUTION

TRAGIC FIRE AT HAMPSHIRE COUNTRY HOUSE

House-Party Guests Trapped In Flames.

FRENCH DUKE AND PEER'S BROTHER DEAD

London, Yesterday.

A French Duke and a Peer's brother are dead following a fire which practically destroyed a country house, "The Heronry," near Whitechurch, Hampshire, early this morning. The victims were house-party guests of Mr. Leander James McCormick, a member of a Chicago millionaire family, and Mrs. McCormick, formerly the Comtesse de Fleuren.

The Duc de La Tremoille, who was found dead under the floor of a collapsed bathroom, was a prominent French cavalry officer.

Captain the Honourable James Rodney, brother of Lord Rodney, died in hospital after a 29-foot leap with his wife from the window of their room. His wife was taken to hospital at Winchester in a critical condition.

The rapidity of the spread of the flames did not allow the guests or the household staff time to dress. An hour after the beginning of the fire the roof crashed in.—Reuter.

LONGER HOURS FOR DRINKING

Animated Debate In House Of Commons.

BILL GIVEN ITS SECOND READING

London, Yesterday.

A Private Member's Bill to standardise the opening hours on week days for the sale of intoxicating liquor, which was introduced in the House of Commons to-day caused an animated debate. Mr. John Lockwood, Conservative Member for Central Hackney, who introduced the Bill, argued that there was no evidence that the extra hour proposed would result in increased drunkenness.

Dr. Alfred Salter, Labour Member for West Bermondsey, described the Bill as one of the most impudent proposals ever put forward and alleged that the Bill was engineered by the drink trade, which Mr. Lockwood denied.

The Bill was given a second reading by 101 votes to 67.—Reuter.

MARY PICKFORD SEEKS DIVORCE

Suit Against Douglas Fairbanks.

"INDIFFERENCE AND NEGLECT"

Los Angeles, Yesterday.

The celebrated film star, Mary Pickford, has filed her suit for divorce from Douglas Fairbanks, charging him with mental cruelty, indifference and neglect.

Miss Pickford, in a formal statement, states that during the last few years she has become increasingly unhappy and is convinced that the future offers no solution.

It is with the deepest regret that she is filing suit, she declares.

The property settlement will be effected out of court.—Reuter.

Princess Sara, sister of the late King Faisal of Iraq, and her husband, Atta Bey, Amin, former first secretary to the Iraq Legation in London, have been ordered to divorce by Royal command. The lovers ran away and were married in Constantinople on Sept. 6, after which they returned to England. Atta Bey Amin.—(S. & G.).

100 AIR FORCE MEN SAIL FOR SINGAPORE

New Torpedo-Bombers Being Sent.

SINGAPORE AIR STRENGTH INCREASED

London, Yesterday.

It is practically certain that the next British Air Estimates will provide for the addition of three air squadrons to the Home Defence out of the 10 extra squadrons laid down ten years ago.

A fourth squadron may be provided to replace the squadron which left England for Singapore yesterday.

Personnel numbering 100, for a squadron of Royal Air Force planes, left for Singapore aboard the P. and O. liner "Ranpura," yesterday. The planes belonging to the squadron, which are Vickers Wildebeeste torpedo-bombers are going by another route.

The arrival of the squadron at Singapore will bring up the strength of the Air Force there to three squadrons.

Those at present there are Squadron 36, composed of torpedo-bombers, and Squadron 205, composed of flying-boats.

It is understood that the arrangements to move the squadron to Singapore were made many months ago.—Reuter.

BRITISH SHIPPING TO BE ASSISTED

Government Action Promised.

UNFAIR DISCRIMINATION BY FOREIGN COUNTRIES

London, Yesterday.

A pledge of Government action to save British shipping from the unfair discrimination of foreign countries was given by Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking to-day at Birmingham.

Mr. Chamberlain said he was not going to see British shipping swept off the face of the ocean "One way or another, we must defend ourselves."

Mr. Chamberlain, however, did not reveal what form the defence would take.—Reuter.

FURTHER DOLLAR DEPRECIATION?

REDUCTION TO 55 CENTS ANTICIPATED

CONGRESS BECOMING CONCERNED WITH INTERNATIONAL ASPECT

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL AND SUNDAY HERALD.

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received December 9, 5.21 a.m.)

WASHINGTON, YESTERDAY.

CORPORATION ATTORNEYS, WHO ARE STUDYING THE UNITED STATES DOLLAR, EXPRESS THE OPINION THAT DEPRECIATION WILL CONTINUE UNTIL IT REACHES 54 OR 55 CENTS, THEREBY GIVING A SLIGHT MARGIN FOR ADJUSTMENTS WITHIN THE CONGRESSIONAL LIMITATION OF 50 PER CENT. DEPRECIATION.

In the absence of official indications, opinion is widespread that a reduction of the gold content of the dollar is still distant. There is a noticeable sentiment in Congress that such a reduction would be hazardous now on account of the uncertainty of international capital movements.

Some are of the opinion that cheapening the dollar is insufficient to raise prices, hence, a swifter application of Codes as a means of reducing commodity surpluses is believed necessary.—United Press, per S. C. Gold Bar Co.

New York, Yesterday.

Wall Street traders continue to be convinced that the market has underlying strength which will easily cause an advance whenever the proper stimulus is applied.

They are especially pleased with the success of the Government's offering indicating that Federal credit is unimpaired.

The New York trade journal, The Analyst, declares that conditions are more cheerful. It adds that the cheaper dollar has enlivened foreign automobile sales and that Government aid has stimulated real estate and building.

U.S. TREASURY ISSUE OVER-SUBSCRIBED

Government Now Free To Resume Gold Plan.

SPECIAL TO SUNDAY HERALD.

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received December 9, 2.55 a.m.)

Washington, Yesterday.

The Acting-Secretary of the United States Treasury, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, has reported that the new offering of U.S.$50,000,000 Certificates of Indebtedness, dated December 15, has been over-subscribed three times.

Observers have called attention to the fact that the Treasury faces no more financing until the spring.

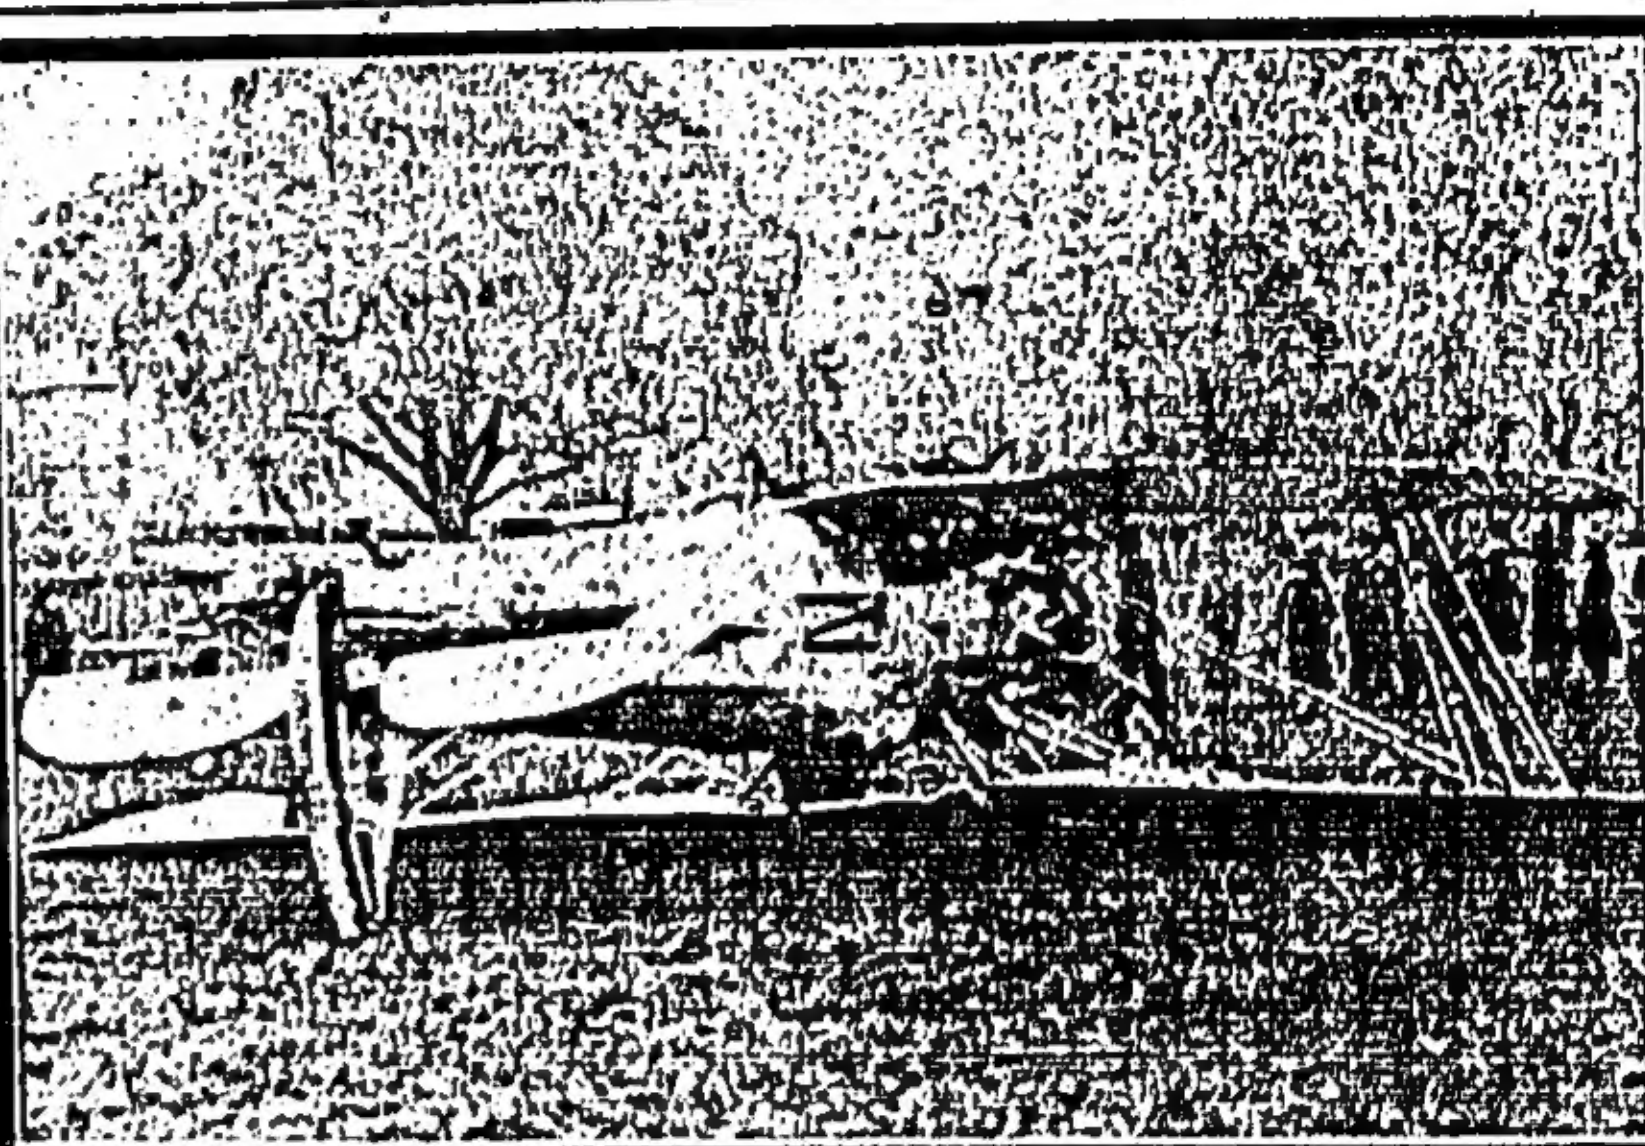

The Government, therefore, is free to resume its gold programme.—United Press, per S. C. Gold Bar Co.

GOVERNMENT IMPOSING MANY NEW TAXES

Foochow, Yesterday.

War feeling is again worked up to a high pitch in spite of the fact that a peace movement is in progress.

The rebels have completed their war preparations in northern Fukien. Their vanguards under General Hsin Kwang-han have reached the Chien-O District and are within a short distance of the pro-Central Government troops under General Liu Ho-ting, who are reported to have already come to a clash with the former.

The rebel Government is raising "wind and dust" to finance the coming campaign. A regulation has been drawn up for the imposition of an inheritance tax in addition to a series of other new taxes which will sooner or later be enforced.—Central News Agency.

STREET BATTLES IN LOGRONO.

POLICE FIRE ON MOBS

Barcelona, To-day.

The Spanish anarchists have issued a manifesto announcing a revolution to-day. The situation is most grave. Police patrols have been doubled and troops are confined to barracks.

The convicts in the prisons are in a state of revolt and orders are given by the warders at pistol point. Several bomb outrages are reported from the suburbs.—Reuter.

Barcelona, Later.

Following the issue of the Anarchist manifesto serious fighting has broken out in the village of Hospitalet, Catalonia, where a mob marching on Barcelona tried to burn a factory with inflammable liquid.

The Civic Guards fired on the mob, which fled towards Barcelona.

Bomb and shooting outrages throughout the city are reported, including the bombing of a church in the Pueblo Nuevo district, where other bombs exploded, one blowing up a gasometer, with great damage.

It is reported from Madrid that at least three have been killed in a night-long street battle at Logrono, where firing is continuing.

The Bilbao express has been derailed. Sabotage is suspected. It is believed that many people were killed and injured.

The Police, however, state that the situation is under control throughout the country.—Reuter.

Chapter XIII.—SHER KHAN INTERVENES.

(By GERALD BURRARD.)

"OF course I did. The best man I had up here, and one whom I could trust absolutely."

"Where was he killed?"

"Not a quarter of a mile away."

"When?"

"How do I know? The body was quite cold when I reached it. Two of the lamas brought me the news soon after sunset, and I hurried out immediately. I found the body where they told me. He had been stabbed just like the others. He was carrying the rubies in a secret pocket in the lining of his under-robe. I felt there at once and found they had gone. No one would have discovered them unless they had made a point of carrying out a most careful search. I tell you, Thompson, that we are being dogged up here, and I don't like it."

Unquestionably this must have been Sher Khan's work. Again Geoffrey felt hope surging up: he tried to force it back, as he knew that escape from the temple was impossible. Thompson had undoubtedly told the truth when he had said that the only way out was by the main gate. All the same the Pathan was no mean adversary, and Geoffrey thrilled at the thought of this cunning ally work on his behalf outside.

Thompson suddenly turned on Geoffrey. He had noted the fleeting glint of triumph in the latter's eyes.

"You know about this. Come, tell me at once. Who is it? Tell me, I say! Speak!" He was now shouting. "If you don't, I promise you that your end will go down to history as something with which to frighten brave men!"

Geoffrey remained perfectly silent, while Thompson and Max gazed at him expectantly. Both were white with fury and almost mad with excitement. Thompson rushed at a wall and seized as jambok from behind a curtain.

"Who is it? You know. I can see you do. Is it that damned nigger who was with you at the mission hut?"

Thompson was now glowering above him, but still Geoffrey refused to utter a word.

"Speak, you dog!" Thompson swung the jambok down on Geoffrey's face, leaving a bloody welt across both cheeks and nose.

He raised his whip again, but Max caught his arm.

"Stop, friend Thompson. You will merely knock the sense out of him. Leave him to me. I promise you I will make him talk. If you go on like that you will finish him off much too quickly. Come, let me attend to him." He spoke soothingly and almost with pleading, but there was a hard ring in his voice nevertheless.

Thompson flung the jambok on the table. "Yes, you are right, Max. I am a fool. Why, I might have killed him. I will leave him to you. Would you like to start at once?"

"No, I think not. We are both tired. It will be better in the morning. Then I will really conduct the business properly. Where will you keep him to-night?"

"In here. I am not going to let him out of my sight."

"Very wise. Good night, Thompson."

After the big Tibetan had gone Thompson proceeded to undress. He saw to Geoffrey's bonds and then rolled him up in a couple of furs. He was obviously anxious that his captive should keep warm, and Geoffrey shrank from his touch, as he understood the reason for this solicitude only too well.

Thompson was soon asleep, but for Geoffrey the hours dragged by. He strained at his bonds, but they were of hide and defied his efforts. At last he realised that it was useless to attempt to break them, and he contented himself with the thought that Sher Khan was on the warpath. Then he fell asleep to dream of Phyllis.

Geoffrey was awakened by the entry of the two Tibetan servants with breakfast. Thompson was already dressed, and gave orders that Geoffrey's hands should be released as before, and again they ate a meal together, the two Tibetans watching Geoffrey's every movement.

"Now, my dear Barracough, the fun will very shortly begin. I have not inquired as to how you slept because I saw you were dreaming peacefully when I got up. I took the greatest care not to disturb you, as I am very anxious that you should have your full strength. You will then provide us with much more amusement, and I am so glad to see that you are eating like a sensible chap. Now and then my guests have refused to eat, in which case they were invariably forcibly fed, and I am a great believer in natural methods myself. Nature is the best healer."

Suddenly there came that double knock on the private door once more, and in another moment Max had burst into the room. He was obviously in a state of even greater excitement than on the previous evening.

"Thompson," he shrieked, "we are done! Bulbul's place has been raided! He was holding a meeting of all the delegates at the time. There was a fight, but only one escaped. All the others were killed or taken!"

For a moment Hayde Thompson seemed too taken aback to move, let alone speak. Max continued, shouting aloud in his fury:

"The whole place was sacked! All our money and treasure taken! Five years' work gone up the damned spout! The one who got away came up here post-haste. He only arrived a short time ago."

Sher Khan.

Thompson's face twitched ominously, but he managed to keep himself in hand, and when he spoke his voice was perfectly calm: "Steady, Max, old man. Even if things are as bad as you say, our work has not been thrown away. The seed has been sown all right, and that is the main thing. It will not be difficult to find more sowers, and I dare say that we will be able to replace Bulbul without any undue difficulty. We have plenty of treasure left. We must think a bit and find out exactly what the other side know. I think our friend, Colonel Barracough, may be able to help us there a bit."

For the first time in his life Geoffrey could not but admire the man. Napoleon laid it down that the real test for a general is his behaviour in defeat. Thompson had just received news of a stunning blow which his deputy had described as a total loss of five years' work and treasure. But he was perfectly calm and never gave a thought of capitulation. His first heed was the possibility of resuscitating his force for a renewal of war. He was obviously the real power behind the gang, and the force which inspired the others to action.

He again turned to Max. "Try and calm yourself. Things are seldom as bad as they seem. You must keep yourself in good fettle for our friend on the floor here. I will have him brought into the next room. Will you go and make your preparations?"

"Yes, Thompson, and they will be preparations. I tell you I feel inspired to-day." He turned and left the room without another word.

"Do you hear that, Barracough? Old Max says he feels inspired. I have never known him say that before, and I have seen him in a good many pretty inventive frames of

Gay Blouses For Winter

Summer Revival Is Carried On.

INFINITE VARIETY OF CUT AND MATERIAL

LAST summer saw a marked revival in summer blouses. This winter is to do the same thing for winter blouses. You wear them in gay woollens, with your tweed and cloth tailormades; possibly with short sleeves; more conveniently, as a rule, with long ones; and almost invariably with some kind of high neck.

You wear them for afternoons, and often in the evenings, too, made of almost any luxurious fabric you please, and in many different lengths and shapes.

Most afternoon and evening blouses go over the skirt, perhaps only a little way below the waist, with waistcoat points in front or a draped belt; or perhaps far enough to deserve the name of tunic.

Some of them are in velvet, crushed or plain; some in ribbed or crushed silk, or satin; a few in lace, or even in broadens with a distinctly Oriental flavour about their designs.

For all sorts of afternoon parties, including the cocktail kind which is liable to merge into dinner and a cinema, this sort of garment is invaluable. You can wear it with a walking-length skirt if you are leaving home too early for a long one; and you can wear it at home or for restaurant dining with an ankle-length skirt of velvet or fine wool in black or a dark colour.

Corselet Skirts Are Smart

Great Variety Of Styles.

THE corselet skirt is a pre-war mode that has advantages for the restricted dress allowance, inasmuch as it allows of greater variety. Both in black satin or velvet the corselet skirt, cut just to clear the ground, can be worn at smart afternoon affairs, also for bridge, cinema and dinner.

One well-cut skirt can have three tops at least. For day a decorative creamy lace or quaint embroidered blouse with a small cape, or bolero, of the black fabric trimmed fur can be worn.

For a cinema a simple satin top with black-and-white neck drapery is good; whilst for dinner a sequinned decolletage, or swathed folds of coloured crepe, which may be worn with a black evening wrap or a sequinned coat, suggest themselves. A well-cut corselet skirt is a good fabric is worth having.

Lacquered Lace Is Lighter

Simple Semi-Dressy Mode For Evening.

LACQUERED lace, this season, is altogether a lighter affair, and in black and the now dark shades is very practical for "The Dansant." Also there are women who look far better in light glittering materials than "matt" surfaced fabrics, which are more difficult, as they depend chiefly on cut and line. Everyone has, or should have, their particular style and do justice to it!

Corselet effect provide us with practical changes, whilst for warm autumn evenings many women, travelling about, will rejoice in simple evening or semi-dressy frocks in the lacquered or varnished fabric.

Danger Lurks In The Beret

Not Suitable To All Types Of Faces.

OFTEN WORN BY WRONG KIND OF WOMAN

BUT there can be no doubt that the great beret family often offers pitfalls to the uninformed. Its very variety conveys a false sense of security, and women will insist on having a beret in some form or other, forgetting to remember that, with notable exceptions, the shape is really best for youth, and even then for owners of rather small heads and faces of the neat and piquant type.

When choosing a beret, therefore, see round every side and take into consideration the laws of balance and proportion. A heavy jowl and square chin are as fatal to success as great width of eyes and eye-brows. Such faces may be beautiful, but they require line and a slight brim.

Danger lurks in the lure of the beret, because so often the wrong woman will wear it—otherwise the style is a charming phase in simple headgear.

"Y" LADIES WIN 6-0 IN FIRST MATCH

Second Caer Clark Cup Defeat For C.B.S.

MRS. READ SCORES FOUR

Although they won by 6 clear goals against the Central British Schoolgirls at King's Park yesterday in their debut match in the Caer Clark Cup Hockey Tournament, the "Y" Ladies' hockey eleven gave a poor display after leading by four goals at the first half.

The Schoolgirls, newcomers to the Competition, were also not at their best, and the strong "Y" defence proved too much for the young forward line.

Miss R. Rousseau was an absentee from the girls' team, her place being filled by Miss J. Lakeran on the right wing. (Continued on Page 12.)

As was generally expected the "A" team of the Club de Recreio Ladies had no difficulty in beating their "B" team in their Caer Clark Cup match on the Marina ground yesterday. The score was 4 goals to nil.

Miss A. Alves was in great form and scored two goals in the first half and added a third soon after the sides changed over. Miss M. Remedios on the wing, netted the fourth.

Ten Saint's Ladies Lose 2-0.

JOAN CHURCHILL AND MRS. SELBY SCORE

Fielding only ten players the St. Andrew's Ladies hockey team did extremely well to hold the Hong Kong Ladies' "A" to two goals at Sookunpoo yesterday.

Both goals were scored in the first half, Miss J. Churchill netting after a quarter of an hour's play, and Mrs. E. Selby adding a second eight minutes later.

In the second half the Hong Kong Ladies had most of the game, but failed to add to their lead. Miss G. White was outstanding in defence for the Saints' while Miss A. Chubb played a splendid game at right half.

CIVILIANS AND NAVY ENTER FINAL

CHINESE ELIMINATED IN LAI WAH CUP

12 GOALS SCORED IN EPIC DUEL

THE large crowd that assembled at the Club ground for the Lai Wah Cup semi-final game between the Chinese and the Civilians, were given a wonderful treat. No game for years has come up to the standard of football displayed. Throughout the game there was thrill after thrill and the excitement affected even the most staid of spectators.

In the two periods of glorious football, 12 goals were scored, seven by the Civilians. The Chinese led 3-1 at half time; within two minutes of the re-start the scores were level; five minutes before time the Civilians were two up, and then a great recovery saw the scores level again. The extra time proved the undoing of the Chinese for the Civilians dominated play and scored one in each half.

The Chinese have now lost one of the trophies they won last season, but they went down fighting.

The honours of this game were shared by quite a number of players. McHardy, Robertson, Blackford, E. Strange, Ward, B. Gosano, Yeung Shui-yick, Tam Kong-pak, Wong Wing and Leung Wing-chui, deserving special mention. The Chinese played better as a team, yet the Civilians were superior as individual players, and this, combined with their better staying powers, gave them victory.

After a very shaky opening, Robertson played the game of his life. Tay Quee-hang, the Chinese left winger, found the rugby player too good a tackler.

The experiment of trying Club wings was definitely a success and it would be hard to say which was the better. Ward and Gosano or Strange and Blackford.

The perfect understanding between the respective pairs, and their passing and interchanging worked admirably. The Interport selections may include both Gosano and Blackford, if only on their showing in this game.

Duncan's Task

Elliot improved after the interval, he was rather slow and missed several chances, but he distributed the ball well and Wong had to watch him. "Andy" Duncan had one object and that was to stop Young Shui-yick, and he partially succeeded, I say partially, for that little box of tricks eluded him occasionally and then McHardy had his most anxious moments.

After a bad start, Strange and Pile settled down to great defensive football, their interception was splendid when faced with the bewildering quick passing between Fung King Cheung and Tam Kong Pak. McHardy behind them fully justified his inclusion, some of his saves were masterly, his gathering was clean and he anticipated shots that seemed certain goals. His opposite number, Wong Wing, gave an equally good display, and neither goal keeper had a chance with the goals scored.

South China, for it was the champions with the exception of Au Kim-fung, made one big mistake, and that was playing Leung Wing-chui as right-half. He gave a splendid display but could not keep to the wing and there were in reality two centre-halves, and as a result of which Blackford was given plenty of room to work in.

Li Ting-sang and Lau Mau played their usual game, but the former was inclined to kick wildly under pressure while Lai Kwok wai found Gosano and Ward a little too much for him. Forward, the Chinese gave a great display, Fung keeping the wings piled with long passes. Au Kim-fung was the echelon and Tam the sharpshooter, with Young sending across glorious centres and Tay using speed effectively.

The Play

The Chinese kicked off and two quick attacks found McHardy ready but a long pass through to Tam brought the first goal, Tam sending in a great shot although tackled by Strange. The exchanges were fast and even and the Civilians were unfortunate when Elliot had a scoring shot diverted into Wong's hands.

There was a big gap between the Civilians halves and forwards and the Chinese quickly took advantage of this by keeping up a strong attack. Dallying in front of goal gave McHardy a chance to rush out to clear from the feet of Fung but in the melee a defender was penalised, and Tay scored from the "spot."

The Civilians approach work improved but their fault lay in too close passing, yet reward came when a long pass from Elliot was deflected by Lau to give Strange a clear run for goal with which he made no mistake. Blackford went through only for Wong to push his shot against the cross-bar and another good Gosano-Ward move saw Strange go close. After being cautioned for an infringement, Tam scored a brilliant goal with the civilians defence spreadeagled.

A remarkable change came over the game after the interval, Gosano completing a glorious piece of work to give Strange an easy goal.

On each of the four occasions that the Club scored the ball was transferred right along the three-quarter line for the winger to go over. G. P. Lammert crossing over three times and J. J. Ferguson once. D. McLellan kicked the two goals.

The outstanding Club forwards were R. O. F. King, K. A. Munro, E. F. Walkden, and D. McLellan, while Sgt. Gould played a magnificent game at full-back for the Army.

The absence of Lt. Walker from the fly half position caused a reshuffle among the Army backs, Lt. Gally being given the key position.

In a very scrappy game the Navy "A" had much their own way at Sookunpoo yesterday when they beat the Army "A" by a goal, a dropped goal, and a try (12 points) to two tries (6 points).

The Navy pack was superior, both in the scrums and in the line-out, and their three-quarters were much faster. Garwood and Bonham scored tries for the Navy, one of which Roome converted. Bonham dropped a goal from near the touch line. Addison and Hughes got over for the Army, neither of which efforts were converted.

FRAGGOTT DAZED BY FALL TO CANVAS

HITS HEAD HEAVILY ON WOODEN PROJECTION

PRYALL GIVES MOST POLISHED DISPLAY

SEAMAN Harry Ewin retained his Colony Middleweight Boxing title and won the Belt presented by Mr. G. G. N. Tinson, M.C., when he secured a technical knock-out over A.B. Fraggott, who was until last night unbeaten in Services' boxing, in the third round of their 15 round title bout at the Lee Theatre last night.

With promise of a hurricane battle being staged the big fight was terminated when Ewin side-stepped a wild rush by Fraggott and sent his opponent to the canvas with a swift right jab. In falling Fraggott struck his head heavily against a wooden projection at the side of the canvas and was clearly dazed. Ewin hit his plucky opponent three times after he had risen unable to defend himself before Mr. H. G. Sheldon, the referee, stopped the fight and awarded Ewin the verdict.

A crowded house witnessed one of the finest programmes staged by the Hong Kong Boxing Association, and great credit is due to Mr. A. E. Ainsworth, the acting-manager, for his untiring efforts behind the scenes.

A.B. Holtham was unlucky to lose his bout to A.B. Willoughby—there could not have been very much in it. The winner was much the older of the two and was not as fast as his opponent, who kept piercing his guard with a well directed left. In the fourth round, however, Holtham ran into a straight left which nearly put him out when he appeared to have the fight well in hand. Willoughby's display in the last two rounds won him the curtain-raising bout.

Willoughby was middleweight champion of the Royal Navy and Marines in 1927.

King's Sound Defence Tel. Johnson commenced very promisingly against Sto. King, but the latter had only to wait for Johnson to lay himself open in his bull-like rushes to pile on the points. Johnson finished strongly and a draw might have been a better decision. Much the slower of the two King showed a very sound defence and never allowed the advantage of trapping his man in a corner to escape him.

King beat Johnson on points in their bout in Wei Hei Wei last Summer.

Pryall's Polished Display Sto. Pryall gave undoubtedly the most polished display of the evening, despite the fact he was warned for hitting with the open glove. He clearly outclassed Sig. Reid, who took an enormous amount of punishment and showed splendid footwork.

Pryall won every round after Reid had commenced on the offensive only to change his tactics very quickly.

Pryall was featherweight champion of North America and the West Indies last year, and is undefeated at his weight.

Palmer's Determination A.B. Barry was in a different class to A.B. Palmer, and it was only the praiseworthy pluck of the latter that saved a knock-out.

After an even first round in which both men sparred unsuccessfully for openings Barry began to show a marked superiority over his rival. In the fifth round Palmer was groggy as the result of a two-fisted body attack and a smashing right to the head, but he came up comparatively fresh in the next round in which he was actually the aggressor.

Barry has fought over 200 contests and has won the West of England lightweight championship. In 1931 he was the Royal Navy and Royal Marines champion. He is considered to be the third best man at his weight in England to-day.

Palmer, beaten by Fraggott in the Final of the Atlantic Fleet welterweight championship, has a draw against Tommy Warren to his credit.

Fraggott recovered very quickly and warmly congratulated Ewin like a true sportsman, while the house rang with cheers for the winner. The Belt, kindly presented by Mr. G. G. N. Tinson M.C., was placed round Ewin by H. E. Admiral Sir Frederic Dreyer K.C.B., who congratulated the winner on his triumph and the loser on his sportsmanship after mentioning Mr. Tinson's creditable War service.

Ewin's Record Ewin won the Colony title when he beat Jock Creighton at two successive tournaments in the City Hall before he went Home on leave. He again beat his rival for the China middleweight crown when stationed in Shanghai. Once a challenger for the British title Ewin has won over 200 fights in England.

LAI WAH CUP

A minute later Gosano rounded Li Tin-ang and centred off the line for Bickford to rush in and breast the ball round Lau and past Wong. Each side now fought desperately for the lead, the play was transferred from end to end, Fung and Tam missing with great shots, Au Kim-fung dallied to let Strange clear, McHardy made two quick saves and Bickford caused Wong to save at the expense of a corner.

Although a couple of goals behind, the Chinese fought hard and each of their attacks looked like producing goals. The deficit was reduced when Fung's shot was diverted to Tam who netted easily, McHardy being injured in attempting to save.

On time Young received the ball and sent in a glorious shot which went in off the post to level the scores again.

Extra time was called for, Lai Kwok-wai was hurt in the first minute and the Civilians enjoyed most of the play, McHardy was soon in action saving from Lau Mau, who should have scored being but a yard out.

Chinese Tired
Robertson's stamina proved a great asset at this stage for he was the master of his wing and paved the way for another goal by causing Wong to clear at the expense of a corner. This was well placed by Gosano and Bickford sent a great drive into the roof of the net.

During the last ten minutes of the game the Chinese were a spent force, and Elliot sent Gosano away with a long pass. The wings completed a long afternoon's work with a shot from a very narrow angle which Wong saw only after it lay spinning in the back of the net.

Civilians:—McHardy, Pile, S. Straker, Robertson, Beltrac, Duncan, B. Gosano, Ward, Elliot, E. Strange and Bickford.

Chinese:—Wong Wing; Lau Mau, Li Tin-ang; Leung Wing-chui, Wong Mei-shun, Lai Kwok-wai; Young Shui-yick; Au Kim-fung; Fung King-cheong; Tam Kong-pak and Tui Quee-lung.

NAVY FULL VALUE FOR GOOD WIN.

Army's Weakness At Half Back.

LANGMEAD SCORES "HAT TRICK"

ON the Kowloon Football Club ground yesterday the Navy defeated the Army by 4 goals to 1, to enter the Final of the Lai Wah Cup.

The Navy were superior in every department of the game, and the score by no means flatters them. With a little luck the score would have been increased considerably, many good efforts by the Naval forwards being stopped more by luck than judgment.

There is no doubt that the Navy held a distinct advantage over their opponents in that the team have played together previously, whereas the Army team was composed of players selected from different units.

Navy Play Good Football

Except for common mistakes, which occurred in the best games, the Navy team as a whole played really good football. Langmead was on the top of his form, and played a good hard game. Smith started shakily, but soon settled down to give a good display. This player improves with every game, and is undoubtedly a valuable asset to the Naval side. Hudspeth showed a remarkable turn of speed, and sent across some fine centres. The left wing was not quite so conspicuous, but Skinner was once again starved, and had little chance to show what he can do.

The halves, Purkins, McGuire and McClurg, completely bottled up the Army attack, while the backs were very safe, James being outstanding.

Liddington dealt confidently with the few shots he was called upon to save.

Weakness At Half Back

Little can be said of the Army team. The backs, Morrison and Allan were both good, and could not be blamed for the Army defeat. The halves were, however, weak, being unable to hold the Navy forwards. Matthias was the best of a poor forward line, with Harris showing occasional glimpses of his true form. Higgins Ridley and Hocquard were too well watched to be dangerous.

Hocquard won the toss and elected to play with the strong sun behind his team. This move almost bore fruit in the first few minutes when the Army captain swung over a high centre which was well forward.

The ball was dropping towards goal and Liddington shaped to catch it. The strong sun got in his eyes, however, and just as he held his arms out, so he lost sight of the ball, which, fortunately for the Navy, hit Liddington's knee and went behind for a corner. Had the ball dropped a few inches to either side, the ball would have entered the net, and may have made all the difference to the result.

Langmead Opens Scoring

After five minutes' play, Langmead, having got the better of a duel with Cork, sent Hudspeth away on the right. The winger ran well down before returning the ball to LANGMEAD, who steadied himself before beating Combey with a low drive.

At the other end Harris went close with a head drive, the ball just skimming the bar. Matthias sent over some good centres, but the ball seemed difficult to control, and both Harris and Ridley missed good chances. The sun troubled Liddington in goal, and he had much difficulty in judging high shots, and the unusual spectacle was witnessed of a goalkeeper wearing a felt hat.

Ten minutes before the interval LANGMEAD placed the Navy further ahead. Following an attack on the Army after Barnett had shot and his effort had been partially cleared by Allan, Langmead, who was following up, netted with a hard drive. Combey got well over to the ball, but failed to hold it.

Langmead's "Hat Trick"

Five minutes later, the Navy centre forward completed his "hat trick." Purkins had sent Hudspeth away on the right for the winger to centre well to Smith, who headed goalwards. Combey ran out a few yards in attempting to clear, but the ball went to LANGMEAD, who coolly nodded into an empty net.

The Army pressed strongly at the commencement of the second half, but could make no headway against the sturdy Navy defence. Higgins came into collision with McGuire and had to be assisted from the field, but returned after receiving attention.

The Army were mainly on the defensive now, and the Navy should have gone further ahead when Langmead had the goal at his mercy. With only Combey to beat from point blank range, he shot straight at Combey, who cleared exceedingly well under heavy pressure.

A breakaway by the Army, when Matthias got going on the right almost resulted in a goal. Harris tapping a spinning ball into the side net from the winger's centre. Harris had bad luck a few minutes later when from the same winger's centre his shot struck the upright and rebounded into play.

The Army continued to press, and their efforts were at last rewarded when, for an offence for "hands" by McGuire, a penalty was awarded. CORKE was entrusted with the kick, and scored with a low shot.

Skinner Has Bad Luck

Transferring play back to the Army area Skinner receiving from Langmead, brought Combey to his knees with a good effort. Skinner went very near Second Division.

Woods Defies South China Forwards.

The South China second string defeated the Artillery by two goals on the Caroline Hill ground yesterday.

It was only the superhuman efforts of Woods that kept the score within the bounds of respectability, Woods showing a keen sense of anticipation.

The game opened very slowly, and lacked keenness until from a corner South China took the lead through Pan Chui-wing, who headed past Woods from the flag kick.

A break away in the second half by Chui Wan-king, led to Pan Chui-wing again netting from the winger's centre. Goals were missed by Chui and Young, who failed to avail themselves of golden opportunities.

South China:—Wong Wah-kai; Ching Ching-ying and Yau Hing-yun; Ip Koon-ning, Pan Tak-po, and Yau Wah-hing; Chui Wan-king, Pan Chui-wing, Kan Shick-wai, Ma Po-kan and Young Poon-ion.

Artillery:—Woods; Price and Gibbons; Hunt, Loane and Scott, Hopkins, Edmunds, Birmingham, Knight and Hill.

Third Division.

R.A.S.C. HELD BY RADIO

At Happy Valley yesterday an evenly contested game between the R.A.S.C. and the Radio resulted in a division of the points—each side scoring once.

Hay netted for the R.A.S.C., while the Radio's point was obtained by Hussain.

BORDERERS WIN

At King's Park yesterday the Borderers defeated the R.A.F. in an evenly contested game by the odd goal in three.

Morgan opened for the Borderers with a nice shot, but Tait equalised shortly after. The R.A.F. fell away in the second half, and Nolan regained the lead for the Borderers.

LINCOLNS BEAT RECREIO

On the Chatham Road ground yesterday the Lincolns beat the Recreio by 7 goals to 2.

Clarke proved a bustling leader, and scored five of the Lincolns' goals. Others were obtained by Mathews and Harper, while Campos and Santos (penalty) netted for the Recreio.

At Happy Valley yesterday, the Engineers lost to South China by 3 goals to 1. In an even first half, Budding scored for the Engineers and To Wal-hung equalised. After the interval the Chinese had more of the game and added further goals through Hai Hui-kwong and Tong Man-hing.

FRIENDLY

The Navy second string waited in vain for the arrival of the East Lancs second team, for their game on the Chatham Road ground yesterday.

Soon after with a great drive, the ball striking the wrong side of the upright.

A free kick against Skinner was taken by Allan, who did not clear cleanly, the ball going to Langmead. The Navy leader passed to BARNETT, who went through to score the Navy's fourth point with a well-placed shot.

Navy:—Liddington (Goal); James (Berwick) and Heath (Kent); Purkins (Orpheus); McGuire (Suffolk) (Captain) and McClurg (Angle); Hudspeth (Kent), Pay, Mid. Smith (Suffolk), Langmead (Berwick), Barnett (Phoenix), and Skinner (Cumberland). How Milner Saved South Africa For The Empire

Chinese Fable That Killed A Government

(By J. B. Firth.)

WHEN, in 1902, Cecil Rhodes was being moved to Muldenburg to die, his last words to Sir Abe Bailey were: "They tell me I am going to die. I must live five years. I must live five years. But you have Milner. You have Milner."

It was the Empire-builders' consolation that, though he was mortally stricken just when he had vowed all that remained to him of life to repair his one tragic blunder, there was still Milner, the great Pro-Consul, to carry on in South Africa, and Joseph Chamberlain, the great Colonial Secretary, to carry on at Whitehall.

The second volume of "The Milner Papers," which Mr. Cecil Headlam is editing with rare skill and insight, issued to-day, contains the story of the second half of Milner's Pro-Consulship. It covers the period of the war and the three extremely difficult years which followed down to his resignation early in 1905.

Lord Roberts' Heart Of Gold. At the outset of the war the High Commissioner passed through a terrible time. He wrote early in 1900:

"The more I see of the Army, the more unhappy I feel about it. We have been saved by two men—especially one of them, that wonderful old courtier with a heart of gold, who alone seems untouched by jealousy, egotism, pettiness. Not that others have not done good work—many have—but it needed someone like him to bring out the good there was. Otherwise, I believe, we should still have gone stumbling from disaster to disaster."

The heart of gold was Lord Roberts. Kitchener's heart was of steel, and he and Milner were engaged in constant duel, though, as Mr. Cecil Headlam acutely says: "They fought, but they never quarrelled."

The contest was most severe over the terms of peace at Vereeniging, when Milner, knowing that Kitchener was tired of South Africa and anxious to return to India, was afraid that he would make dangerous concessions to the Boer envoys. He felt that he alone could put through a satisfactory "Kaffir bargain" with the wily Boer.

To-day it reads like a tale of long ago. The Great War has dwarfed all that went before. Yet the British Empire was at stake in South Africa in those days.

Peril Of The Critical Years. Calm, inflexible, adamant, growing at heart, though the red fire was rarely seen, Milner, with Joseph Chamberlain's loyal backing, saved South Africa for the British Empire in most critical years, though the way of salvation broadened out later on lines which neither could foresee.

All this belongs to history, and to my mind the main interest of this book lies in its clear revelation of Milner's mind and its special significance for the actual politics of to-day.

Milner's experience at the Cape convinced him that the working of the British Parliamentary system was disastrous in its effects upon Imperial policy. The following is from a letter some time after he had refused Balfour's pressing invitation to succeed Chamberlain at the Colonial Office:

"I am an anachronism. It may be I was born too late. It may be I was born too soon. In the latter, I think the less probable, case I may be of some use in politics as an outsider, though never again as an active participant in the fray. But I am not going to make myself miserable any more, or to embarrass any Ministry or party by holding office on the terms on which under the conditions of our day it can alone be held. Every man can afford to hold some unpopular ideal. But I have amassed all the most unpopular."

Party Spirit At Home. That was penned, no doubt, somewhat whimsically. But the kernel of his inability—like Cromer—to become a strict party man is to be found in a sentence written in 1905 to Lord Selborne, who succeeded him as High Commissioner:

Without the tomfoolery of home party politics interfering with a sane Imperial policy, we should, I think, be safe. The national character is tenacious in adversity, but all too vacillating when it desires a change. "It is more than any man can do," wrote Milner in 1902, "to avert the consequences of the ignorance, self-sufficiency, proneness to optimistic self-delusion and foolish worship of shibboleths, which at once resume their sway over John Bull, when you cease kicking him." Have we not had abundant examples of this since the war?

"I could wrestle with Boers for ever," Milner wrote, "but British infatuation is too much for me. What with our sentimentality, our party system, our Government by Committee, our Mandarins, our Society, our Generals—the game is just hopeless. Our political organisation is thoroughly rotten, almost non-existent. It's Carthaginian."

"Joe is a strong man. Under other stars, he might be as big as Cavour or Bismarck. But all he can do is to maintain himself. K. is a strong man, but all he is doing is to paralyse me."

Chinese Slavery Decelt. At one time Milner was inclined to pin his faith to the Liberal Imperialists; "if only he could have been quite certain that they meant to have the courage of their opinions and were prepared to be out in the cold for some time." But to stay too long out in the cold did not at all suit the book of Asquith, Haldane, and Grey, who hurriedly made their peace with Campbell-Bannerman and the Little Englanders as soon as "C-B." was in a position to form a Ministry.

Moreover, in their particular variety of Imperialist creed there was no room for that Imperial Preference which was an essential part of the Milner-Chamberlain Imperialism. They therefore sank their Imperialism for the sake of Free Trade, and plunged into the "Chinese Slavery" agitation. That agitation arose from a proposal to import indentured Chinese labourers for the Rand mines, and it drove the last nail into the coffin of the Balfour Administration.

Mr. Headlam's comments on this agitation are deservedly scathing: "Politicians will be politicians; but in the whole history of party warfare there is not to be found anything more cynical and disgusting than the speeches, backed by banners and cartoons of flogged and fettered Chinamen,

"Well, my boy," said Uncle Tom, "and how are you getting on at school?"
His nephew looked a trifle despondent.

"Oh, not so bad, uncle," he replied; "and I'm trying awfully hard to get ahead."
"That's good," said uncle absently; "you need one."

The New Order
(It has been stated that nowadays the "roast beef of Old England" is less popular than fish and chips.)
Of roast beef and Britain the song has been written:
Its echo is still to be heard.
'Twas the pride of the nation and had an ovation

Porter: "All right, then, turn to your right and you'll be left!"

Safety First
The night-watchman in the bank heard a noise coming from the direction of the safe. Clutching his stick in his hands, he went to investigate, and saw a man with a torch working on the combination.

"Hi!" said the watchman fiercely. "What are you up to?"
The burglar wheeled round, startled, but he soon regained his composure.

"Sah, old man, don't make a noise," he said, with great presence of mind. "I only want to see if my deposit is all right. You can't be too careful these days."

OLD LONDON LANDMARKS DISAPPEARING

Builders Busy On Richmond Hill.

TEMPTING SITES SEIZED

London. Imperceptibly the old London is disappearing. Familiar landmarks are being pulled down.

When a building, however charming and familiar, but of no particular historical interest, has outlived its times and usefulness there can be no valid objections to its removal.

It was only after the tall, new telephone building in Queen Victoria Street was finished that London became aware that the fine prospect of St. Paul's from Blackfriars Bridge had been stolen from the public.

Similarly, when the temporary Waterloo Bridge has been removed, it will be found that the new Lever House has sadly interfered with the famous view of St. Paul's rising over the city.

Fears are now entertained that the grand view of Whitehall with the towers of Parliament in the background may be destroyed by the proposed Government offices there, but such fears, however, appear groundless.

Instructions have been prepared for the architect which effectively confine the new building within the limits necessary to preserve the Whitehall view.

It is also emphasised that the relation of the new buildings to Inigo Jones's masterpiece, the Banqueting Hall, is to be recommended for consideration in the architect's design.

This question of the relation between the architecture of new buildings and those already existing near the site is a thorny one. Many criticisms of the Dorchester Hotel, in Park Lane are made on the ground that it is foreign to the atmosphere of this typically English part of London.

Its smooth, clear-cut lines and air of candid, unpretentious opulence are essentially modern, while in details the architect has borrowed freely from the Continent.

Builders of big blocks of flats have recently turned their attention to Richmond, one of the most graceful and charming of London's near neighbours.

Old houses with big grounds come into the market fairly often nowadays in that part of the world, and they provide the builder with tempting sites.

A great block of flats is in process of completion on the slope of Richmond Hill, while Queensberry House and its fine grounds extending to the Thames or Chiswick Road are to be the site of another. — Reuters.

HOW MILNER SAVED SOUTH AFRICA FOR THE EMPIRE

by which the anti-Chinese agitation was worked up in Parliament, the Press, the Chapel, and the street-corner by right reverend prelates and Nonconformist divines, by Hyde Park orators and right honourable gentlemen who themselves sanctioned similar restrictions on indentured labour elsewhere. They were all the more effective and all the more unforgivable because they were a deliberate exploitation of one of the most just and generous instincts of the British people.

No wonder Milner was deeply pained by the levity of a popular verdict given in the voting boxes which condemned his whole work on the strength of a despicable lie.

"The System is Hopeless"

In a striking letter to Lady Edward Cecil he wrote:

"We have got as good raw material of statesmen as any country ever had. But the system is hopeless. Only one man in a hundred dares give effect or utterance to the statesmanship that is in him, and he, being a solitary incident, is of little use. . . . There is no consistent national mind about any political question, no standard, no cohesion, system, training anywhere."

And then follows a sarcasm as blistering as any of Dean Swift's:

"Perhaps a great Charlatan—political scallywag, buffoon, liar, stump orator, and in other respects popular favourite—may some day arise who is nevertheless a statesman—the combination is not impossible—and who, having attained power by popular acts, may use it for national ends."

Provision for the establishment of a Volunteer Naval Defence Force in the Colony is made in a Bill published in the Government Gazette.

The Force will be raised and maintained at the expense of the Colony. Every member of the force, under the Ordinance, will be entered for a term of three years, and during that period no member will be required to attend instruction training and exercise more than 28 days a year.

The Ordinance provides a list of offences with a penalty on conviction of a fine not exceeding $500 or three months' imprisonment.

The forthcoming marriage of Laurence Langley Nash, Clerk in Holy Orders, of the Diocesan Boys' School, Kowloon, and Geraldine Ruth Bradley, of St. Andrew's Vicarage, Kowloon, is announced.

It is an off-chance, but I do not see any other."

Make all the necessary allowances for bitterness of spirit and depression of soul—the point of the sarcasm pieces still. The "tomfoolery" remains. There is no consistency of policy.

Evils That Produce Fascism

The gravest Imperial issues lie at the mercy of an election lie; and the Capitalist system and the entire Constitution are to be thrown in with them—if the Socialists have their way—to make sure that the catastrophe is total on a single day of wrath. It is that which has produced and is producing Fascism in the countries of Europe, and that is the moral of much of this book.

Only occasionally does Mr. Headlam give us glimpses of the other Milner as he saw himself in retirement procul ab negotiis.

My desire now is all and only for the big, quiet things, "In the highlands, in the country places." I want travel, not too hurried. Books, not too many. A country home, I don't care where, not too big. I want Art, Music, of which I have been quite starved. . . . But neither Honour, Wealth, Society, or Power have any spell for me—they never had much—any more."

Nevertheless, further honours remained in store for him during the Great War, when the nation in its extremity again remembered the man with clear mind and purpose deep retired among his books and "dear old rubbish" at Sturry Court, and once more found him splendidly strong to save.

Britain's Foreign Policy.

THE aggressive spirit in Germany, fomented by the Nazis' deliberate glorification of war, has awakened fears in Britain not only as a present disturbance of peace, but also as a tendency. It imparts immediately and seriously reliance upon universal pacts to maintain peace. The Locarno Pact made by the Western European Powers, the Pact of Paris (the Kellogg Pact) in which all Powers formally renounced war as an instrument of national policy, the Four Power Pact of last May in aid of a tentative agreement for reduction of armaments at the Geneva Conference — all these general treaties have become suspect by the defection of Germany. In direct defiance of the Kellogg Pact Hitlerism in Germany is extolling war as an instrument of national policy. The Locarno Treaty of mutual guarantee between Germany, Belgium, France, Britain, and Italy, was designed to "strengthen peace and security in Europe," and to provide "supplementary guarantees within the framework of the Covenant of the League." All disputes between Germany and Belgium, and Germany and France, were to be settled by peaceful means. In the event of any breach of Articles 42 and 43 of the Versailles Treaty—prohibiting the construction of fortifications or the assembly of armed forces on the left bank of the Rhine, or within 50 kilometres east of the right bank—the League was to be moved to prompt action, and, furthermore, the other contracting parties bound themselves to come to the aid of the Power against whom such act of aggression was directed. The ratified Locarno Treaty was to come into force when Germany should become a member of the League of Nations. Germany having now left the League, the Locarno Treaty is of doubtful value. Germany and Japan having proceeded in the plainest fashion to reinstate war as a prime instrument of national policy, the Kellogg Pact might almost as well be discarded. The United States (as an original proposer) and Japan and Germany (as members) having in turn deserted the League, Russia being still beyond its pale, and the League's authority in emergency having been proved mostly ineffectual, how much real virtue can be said to remain in the Covenant? The whole scheme for prevention of war under the Covenant presumes speed and authority in the League's action. Yet the history of fourteen years has utterly annihilated that presumption. The plain inference in every European chancellor's nations do not intend to abide by them when they become inconvenient. Mr. Baldwin recently declared that Britain held the Locarno pledges as sacred. But feeling is expressed in Britain now against the Locarno Treaty as a dead letter. The British dominions have never accepted its obligations, and it is demanded that the Empire shall be united on British policy. There is also a pronounced dislike, in the altered conditions to-day, of commitment to instant war in support of a demilitarised Rhine zone. The altered conditions are the relatively weaker British Navy and Air Force, the desertion of the treaty by Germany, and the falling prestige of the League. Virtually the Locarno obligation, robbed now of its police character, would mean a British commitment in aid of a French advance to the Rhine without any compensating obligation by France in other circumstances. Since Britain and France possess important common interests, the protection of them may have to be assured henceforth by the old and tried means of an offensive and defensive alliance. The delusion of the age, largely caught from America, is that fine words and sentimental appeals are sufficient to prevail. France notably has never cherished that delusion, and France to-day has justified herself in the eyes of all British people who lament at a late hour the decline of British prestige. Whether for security or to give restored weight to her voice in foreign policy, Britain must now strengthen her fighting arms. Without the authority thus derived she cannot intervene with effect to forbid another war. British policy has weakened with the decay of the Navy, and peace in Europe is the supreme British interest. One-sided disarmament has failed. As the First Lord of the Admiralty said recently, it will cost money to re-establish the force which will assure British authority in European councils; but the cost will be negligible in comparison with that of another war.

DECLINING BIRTHS IN FRANCE.

Serious Situation Foreseen.

The French birth-rate is still falling. Already figures for the first three months of the year showed that the births totalled 14,550 less than for a corresponding period last year. Although statistics have not yet been published, it is stated that the death rate will considerably exceed the birth-rate.

The situation is all the more serious in that the reduced birth rate during the War is now making itself felt in a diminution of the marriage rate. If, in addition, the birth rate continues to decrease, it is estimated that before long there will be 150,000 or 200,000 more deaths than births recorded.

It will moreover no longer be possible to reduce the death rate to the proportions of the decreased birth-rate, since the percentage of elderly people must in the present circumstances increase.—Reuter.

Australia's Primitive Barter System.

Sydney, N.S.W.

A primitive system of barter operates daily in the Gosford district, 50 miles from Sydney. City salesmen canvass the farms and orchards, with collars in exchange for eggs, shirts for dressed poultry, and so on.

As a rule the salesman has sacrificed the stock, or representatives of the factory are struggling to keep going, they say.

Their aim is to get enough money to cover the cost of the goods, and to accept bartered goods from farmers for the rest. This they live on, or convert into cash elsewhere on the road. Eggs, pumpkins, or whatever products the farmer has to spare, have been accepted by the salesman.—Reuter.

LONDON TOPICS

OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

London, November 22.

Lord Rothermere and Air Defences. Lord Rothermere has made an appeal for a force of 5,000 air-planes.

This is no new attitude for him. He has always been an air-planes man, and has constantly pointed out the importance of strengthening our air defences.

But the situation has changed, and the public mind is more receptive than it was. Perhaps the meteorological conditions are favourable, and that this time Lord Rothermere is likely to have a successful flight.

On The Carpet. The Conservative Inquest on the East Fulham disaster is still proceeding. The chairman of the party organisation is being held accountable, and the Central Office is undergoing severe criticism.

Critics have sometimes said that Mussolini. The Mussolini is still the Conservative Party needs a lacking, but a Marshal Balbo has been found.

Lord Stenhouse is Mr. Baldwin's Balbo. The New Treasurer. The appointment of Lord Greenwood, good man though he is, to succeed Lord Ebbisham as treasurer of the party is a curious one.

Here is an ex-Radical, a teetotaler, and a man who has given rousing addresses on temperance, put to the job of raising money for the party. It is difficult to imagine Lord Greenwood presiding over the convivial dinner parties which his office suggests.

In the old days it was the practice of the party to employ great names to collect the money from those who desired to possess great names; but Lord Greenwood, like his predecessor in office, is not of the aristocracy.

Made By Lloyd George. It is not only the fact that Lord Greenwood is an ex-Radical and a protégé of Mr. Lloyd George, plucked from the depths in comparatively recent years, that will make this appointment displeasing to many Conservatives.

Lord Greenwood played a considerable part in bringing about the Irish Treaty, and that treaty is not popular among Conservative at the present time.

Many of them, in fact, like it even less than the Locarno Treaty.

Whitehall And Welsh. It is often wondered why Welsh is included as a subject at Civil Service examinations.

It is not proving very popular with candidates for Whitehall. At the recent examination for executive appointments, which rank next in importance to the administrative class, out of a total of 1228 competitors of both sexes, only four ventured to tackle Welsh. Three hundred women entered the competition, and not one offered Welsh as a subject.

French was the most popular of the languages, being taken by 42 of the 100 successful candidates. Latin came next with 26, while German was a long way behind with eight. Six favoured Greek, and one Welsh.

Not one of the successful candidates will be employed in Wales.

Secret Instructions. The Conservative Central Office is giving secret instructions to members of Parliament speaking in the by-elections. It has commanded them to avoid references to India.

Many Conservative members have been mobilised to help the party's candidates. They receive marching orders from the Central Office. These orders give them the name of the candidate, the date and place of the meeting, allotted to them, the size of the audience expected and other particulars. They also set out subjects on which the member is advised to speak.

Another column gives topics to be avoided—if possible—and in this last column India is mentioned. Members understand that they are not to introduce the subject, and if they are questioned about it they are to avoid it.

More About Big Heads. New information has been unearthed on the measurements of men's heads.

A doctor gave as an example the Australian aborigines and the Eskimos: both these races have a very low level of intelligence, yet the Australians have the smallest skulls of any human beings and the Eskimos' heads are the same size as the Britishers'.

He added that up to the age of puberty there is no difference in size between male and female skulls; after puberty a woman's head tends to be about 10 per cent. smaller than a man's, irrespective of intelligence or education.

Greater than Captain Cook? The thanksgiving service to the memory of Admiral Arthur Phillip, held on October 12 at the Church of St. Mildred, Broad-street, was the first of an annual series.

Admiral Phillip founded Australia, and England quickly forgot the fact. He went out to New South Wales in 1787 with eleven small vessels, founded Sydney, named it after the Colonial Secretary of the time, and, seated on the beach, drew up plans for a fine city with broad avenues.

After four years his health broke, and he came to England. His reward was to be made an admiral and left to do what he could with himself in Bath, for the rest of his life. His reputation has now been rediscovered and reburnished.

Lord Onslow's Bonus. The choice of Lord Onslow for the presidency of the International Conference for protecting African wild life, which met in the House of Lords, is appropriate.

He is President of the Society for Empire Fauna Protection, and an excellent example of the unpaid and unsung public servant.

He did, however, once receive a special vote of £437. In 1929 he temporarily exchanged the post of Under-Secretary for War, which was an unpaid job, for that of Paymaster-General, which was a paid one, in order to pilot a Local Government Bill through the Lords. The grant was in respect of salary due during his temporary occupancy of the paid office.

The Socialists were resentful. "Piece-work payment" to a peer roused Mr. Thomas to declare that it was an amazing estimate.

Mr. Pethick Lawrence, less pious, suggested the payment of a smaller amount and outlined a bill of cost. It ran:

To mugging up the Bill, £50.
To reading the speeches of the Minister of Health, £10.
To reading speeches of the Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Health, £20.
To reading speeches of the Members of the Opposition, £150.
To inquiring the real answers to speeches of the Opposition, £150.

A pretty Chinese wedding took place in the Roof Garden of the Sincere Company on Tuesday, November 21, when Miss Cheng Fan-Sang, of Canton, became the bride of Mr. Shu Shi Ming, of Hong Kong.—(King's Studio).

Bronzed Battalions of The Surf.—This team of lifesavers is typical of the distinctive Australian surf clubs, which perform excellent social services in safeguarding the less-accomplished or too-venturesome swimmers. These physically splendid specimens of manhood and womanhood perform a purely voluntary service and their weekly carnivals and contests are a feature of Australia's surf beaches.

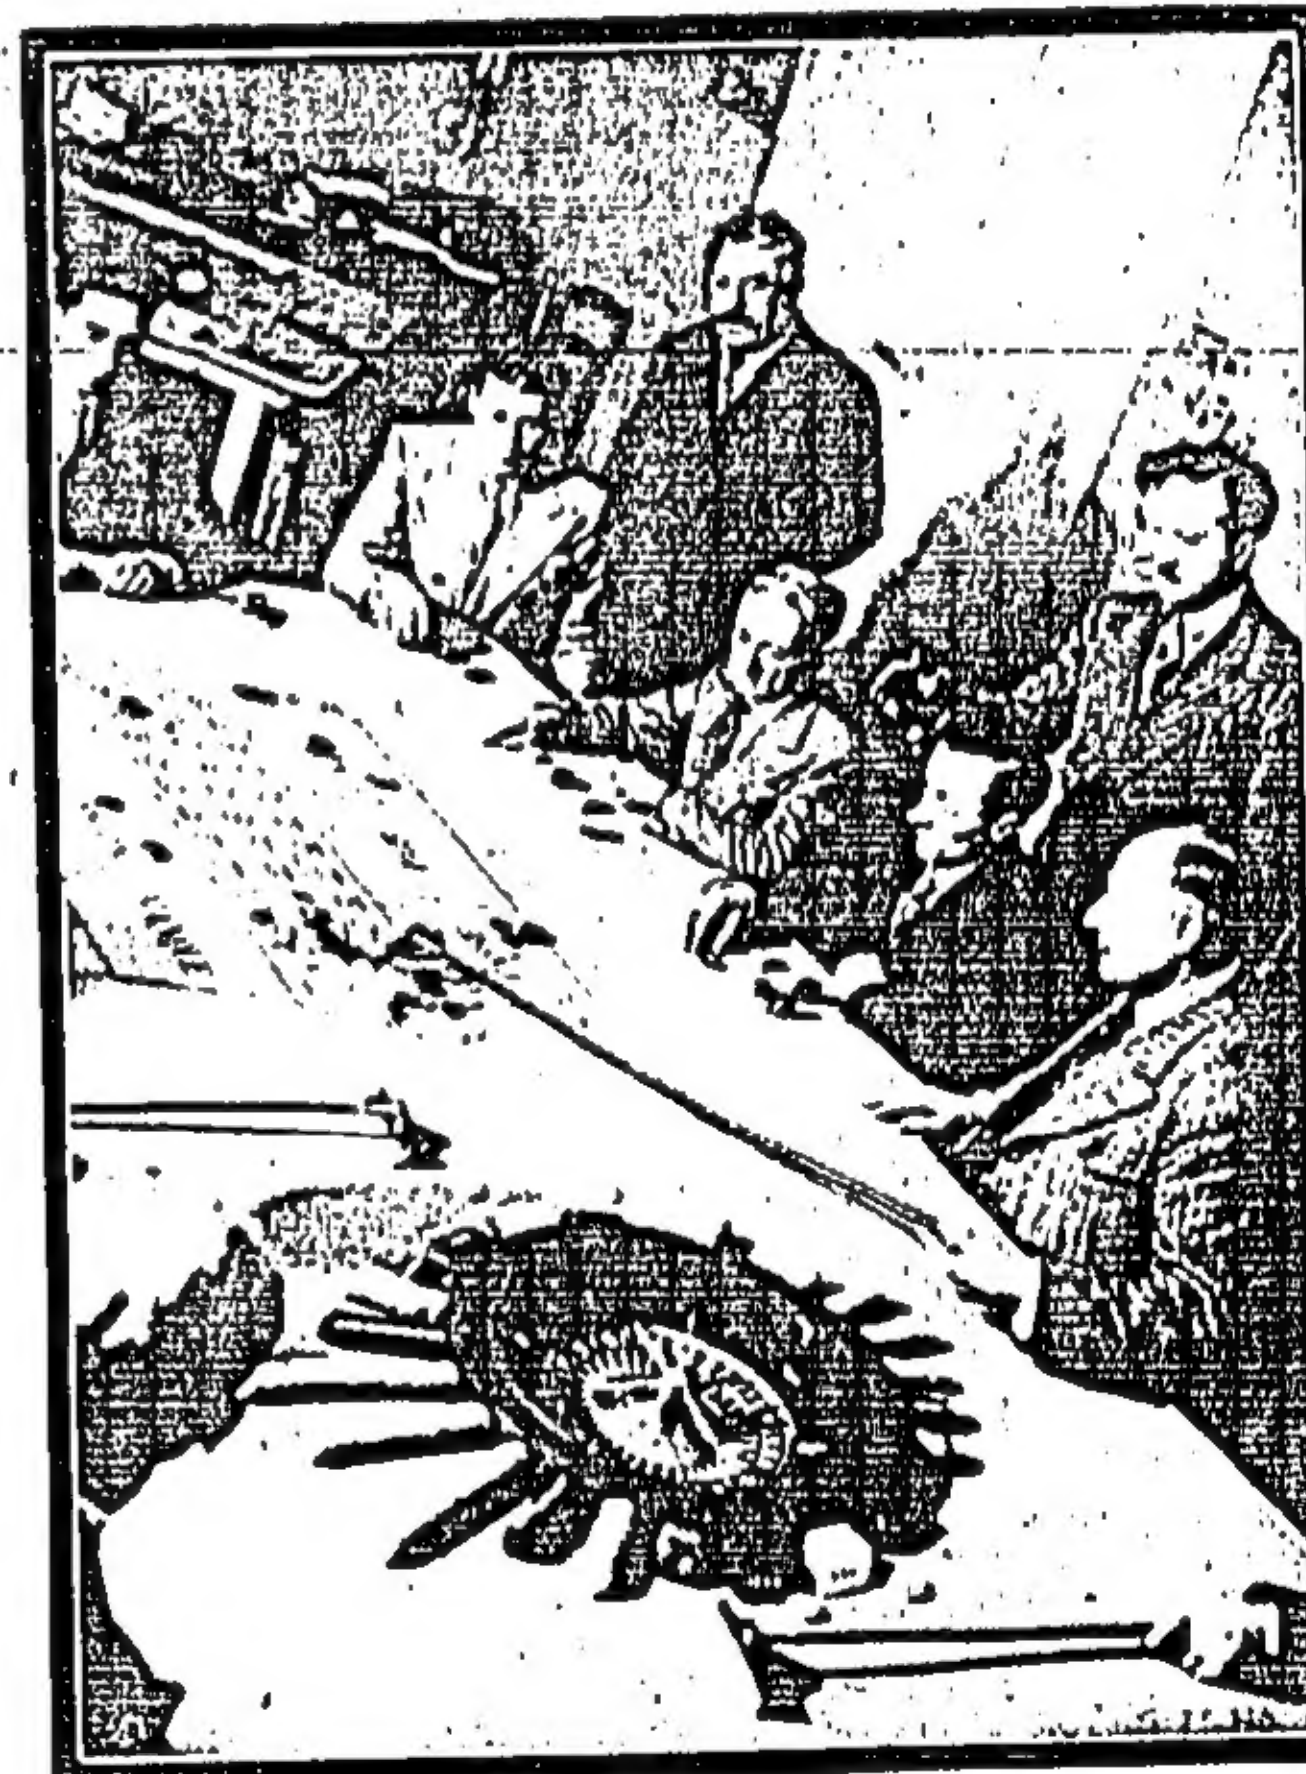

"City Of Laughing Loveliness."—From roof gardens such as this are unfolded the vagrant twists and turns of the world-famous Sydney Harbour. The mammoth bridge spans the harbour and links the city proper with the residential districts on the north shore. During November, 1934, Sydney's Festival Fortnight will lend even more of the carnival spirit to this gay city with its natural attractions of glorious surfing beaches, beautiful bushlands and delightful mountain fastnesses.

"Casino Luck," a Blue-eyed White Persian, winner of many prizes, admires herself in the mirror.—(S. & G.).

A new school has been opened in Paris for croupiers. Learning how to remove the counters from the losers without touching the winners.—(S. & G.).

A working model of the new system of transport known as the "Railplane," has been submitted to the London County Council by Mr. Charles Boot, a Sheffield builder. The railplane consists of streamlined cars slung from bogies, which travel on a single overhead rail. The cars are propelled by air screws fore and aft, driven by electric motors or oil engines. Its chief advantages are cheapness in construction and operation. It is designed to work at speeds up to 120 miles an hour.—(S. & G.).

Technically known as Helostoma Temminckii, this pair of affectionate fish in the New York aquarium earned the titles of "Cha" and "Hotcha" by their penchant for kissing in public. They were acquired from the Rotterdam aquarium recently. Since coming to the United States they have been the centre of attraction, especially when they engage in a love scene as that shown here.

MEETING AFTER 44 YEARSMan Knew His Sister Immediately.

Sydney.

The liner Ormonde, which arrived from London recently, could not move quickly enough for Mrs. Robert Alexander, aged 70, of Edinburgh, and when the liner berthed she could not talk quickly enough, for she was meeting her brother whom she had not seen for 44 years. Her brother, Mr. Peter Thompson, of Woy Woy, recognised her immediately.

He pointed her out to her five nieces, one nephew, and five grandchildren whom she had never seen before. Mrs. Alexander came to Sydney first when she was a young girl. On that occasion she travelled by sailing ship.—Reuter.

FARMER ATTACKED BY KANGAROO.Saved By Employee.

Perth, West Australia.

A large kangaroo attacked Victor Peters, a farmer, at Wubin, Western Australia, jumping on to him as he was picking up an axe.

Peter's hat and clothing were ripped in the struggle, but an employee killed the kangaroo before Peters was injured. Peters was attacked by a kangaroo some months ago.—Reuter.

FRENCH FLAGSHIP ARRIVES.Exchange Of Salutes.

The French Cruiser Primauguet, flying the flag of Vice Admiral C. A. M. Berthelot, arrived in Hong Kong yesterday morning from Formosa and Shanghai.

As she entered the harbour she saluted the Colony with 21 guns and the Commander-in-Chief, Admiral Sir Frederick Charles Dreyer, with 17 guns. The forts replied on behalf of the Colony, while H.M.S. Eagle returned the salute of 17 guns for the Commander-in-Chief.

C.B.A. LADIES LOSE AND MEN DRAW

Second Half Recovery
Against Cumberland.

ALLEN CARRIED OFF

The Central British Association entertained two hockey teams from H.M.S. Cumberland on their ground at King's Park yesterday. The C.B.A. Ladies lost to the Torpedo Company of the naval vessel earlier in the afternoon by 3 goals to 1, while the Mens' team shared four goals with the ship's side immediately afterwards.

Miss M. Whitley scored for the Ladies, while Edwards and Lamb netted for the Torpedo Company.

After being lead by two goals to nil in the first half, the Mens' team made a wonderful recovery to level the score just before the close of the game.

The naval team completely dominated matters in the first half, when Lt. Pares and Lt. Juniper scored early in the game.

In the second half, the C.B.A. netted their first goal through T. Whitley, and Spigot, a naval reserve playing in their team, levelled the scores.

F. W. R. Allen twisted his knee while in play shortly afterwards and had to be carried off the field.

Mrs. Webber, the C.B.A. Ladies' goalkeeper, who played in goal for the Mens, gave a remarkably fine performance, bringing off two clever saves.

C.B.A.—Mrs. Webber, MacNider, Baughflower, Allen, Halford, MacNider, Blyth, Spigot, Whitley, Lamb and King.

H.M.S. Cumberland—Tritton, Lt. Lowe, Conder, Dalton, Miss. Talbot, Lt. Conder, Rust, Mordy, Lt. Richards, Hetherington, Lt. Pares, Lt. Juniper and Edwards.

"Y" LADIES WIN 6-0 IN FIRST MATCH.

Mrs. Read scored the first two goals for the "Y" and Miss R. Blackmore added the third. This goal, however, could have been easily saved if Miss Moss had kicked the ball clear rather than attempt to stop it with her stick.

The fourth goal for the "Y" ladies was the result of a splendid pass from Miss O. Brown on the left wing which was smartly taken up and netted by Mrs. Read.

The Schoolgirls' made several good attempts in the second half to break through, especially by Miss Knill on the wing, but the "Y" defence proved sound.

Miss O. Brown netted the fifth goal early in this half, and Mrs. Read scored the sixth.

MRS. JAMES WINS.

Miss Hancock displayed her best form in the opening set when after a ding-dong, struggle her placements and strong left forehand drives often left her opponent standing.

In the second set Miss Hancock established an early lead of two games, but Mrs. James fought back valiantly to take the third and fourth games to draw level, but once again Miss Hancock took the upper hand and drew away from her opponent to take the next three games.

With the score at 5-2 and love 15 in her favour, Miss Hancock became erratic, and Mrs. James took the game and the next four games for set.

Miss Hancock took the first three games in the final set, but Mrs. James produced her best form at this stage to draw level.

The seventh game provided a thrilling struggle, Miss Hancock taking the lead with a smash, but once again experience came to the fore and Mrs. James annexed the next two games to take the lead at 5-4.

Miss Hancock gamely hung on and took the tenth game to draw level once again. Mrs. James, however, overcame her opponent in the next two games for set and match.

The finals of the Colony Ladies' Doubles Championship between Mrs. Stafford-Smith and Miss V. L. Thomas and Mrs. James and Mrs. Lochner, will be played this afternoon at the U.S.R.C., commencing at 3.30 p.m.

After carrying the fight in the fifth round Judge was in distress the sixth as the result of a lead and right to the face and was twice warned for holding. He came back well in the last round when one time he had Foley groggy, but could not follow up his advantage owing to his opponent's long reach.

Foley beat Judge for the Colored heavyweight title at the Lyceum Theatre earlier in the year. Judge was formerly one of Primo Carnera's spurring partners. Judge is the present China Fleet lightweight champion.

mind before this. Now, look here. I will be a sportsman and will shorten your programme by one-half if you will tell me at once all you know about your Government's activities and knowledge. No, don't answer at once. You see, I will be bound to find out sooner or later, so if you tell me you will not really be giving anything away. What do you say?"

Geoffrey answered him for the first time: "I say this. We know all about you and your loathsome works. I don't care what you do to me, but you will not last so very much longer yourself. Your days are numbered."

"Oh, so that's your tune, is it? I hoped you would be sensible. But we shall see."

Some armed Tibetans entered the room, picked Geoffrey up and carried him out into the hall of torture. They threw him roughly on the ground, and as he rolled over he saw to his amazement that Phyllis and her father were also laid out on the floor close beside him. Both were bound hand and foot. Phyllis caught his glance of horror and smiled at him reassuringly; and worship her as he did, never before had he been filled with quite such wonder at her marvellous fortitude.

He saw a force of some twenty armed guards, both Chinese and Tibetan, collect inside the door which led out into the passage beyond. Max was already seated at the long table. Thompson spoke to him in a whisper for a few seconds and then came over to Geoffrey.

"I give you one more chance to change your mind, Barracough. Tell all you know and your punishment will be halved. I warn you that we do not intend to start on you yourself. We feel that a man of your temperament will object to seeing his lady-love in agony even more than he will dislike his own physical discomforts. You will accordingly have the pleasure of seeing and hearing both this young woman and her father suffering wholly because of your obstinacy. Surely your allegiance to your Government will not permit you to be so unchivalrous. You have but to say the word and I promise you that they will not be harmed."

"How do you mean, not be harmed? Will they be released?"

"Oh, hardly that, but I will have them killed quickly and mercifully before your eyes if you like. They will be saved a lot. Come along, now."

"Geoffrey, you are not to tell. If you love me don't tell." Phyllis's voice was clear and firm.

"And I say the same. God will help us," called Mr. Merridew across the room.

MASTER SWITCH FOR BATTERIES

Needed Attachment
For Cars

STANDARDISED IN MANY
1934 MODELS

The advantages of a master switch, by means of which the battery can be disconnected without delay in the event of a short circuit or other emergency, have been continually becoming more and more apparent, and the leading manufacturers of British electrical equipment have now introduced a switch of the type advocated.

In view of these facts, it is gratifying to notice that a battery master switch is being standardised by a number of car manufacturers on their 1934 models.

This implies no criticism of the way in which electrical equipment is applied to the modern car; indeed, methods of wiring and safeguarding by fuses are now better than ever before.

When it is remembered, however, that every private house is fitted

DOMINIONS DEMAND BRITISH CARS

Signs Of Advance
Everywhere

London.

On the eve of the opening of the Motor Show at Olympia by Prince George, Sir William Morris, the motor-car magnate, issued a statement full of confidence in the coming year, which he declared would be "a memorable one for the British car industry."

"Everywhere there are convincing signs of advance," he added. "The home market is expanding, and clearly 'Buying British.'"

"More important still, the demand for British cars from the Dominions, Colonies, and foreign countries continues to grow."

"The industry has its feet firmly set on the path to progress; and other industries can follow its lead by adopting the same up-to-date methods."—Router.

With a main switch for use in emergencies, it will be granted that, in the case of a motorcar (where the wiring is liable to accidental damage in so many ways), the provision of a similar device is even more desirable.

About this matter of minutes and miles.
Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

The speedometer is a little thing, but can be a big source of wrong conclusions.

On a recent test, two cars of different makes, with speedometers set at 0 were given each two gallons of gas, and driven the same road till they stopped. The top car went 7 miles farther down the road than the low car, yet the low car's speedometer showed that it had gone farther than the top car. Paper miles and road miles may be two quite different things.

It is easier to build a speedometer that will read 70 miles an hour than a car that will go 70 miles an hour.

A Detroit man who has a summer home in Northern Michigan, began several months ago to drive his first Ford V-8. He says:

"My watch tells me that I go up north in less time than I did before, but my Ford speedometer says that I go at slower speed, and the trip registers fewer miles. In my former car the speedometer speed was higher, my mileage greater on this trip, but with my Ford V-8 I go in less time and use less gas."

There is no mystery about that. His former mileage, speed and gas consumption were delusions. He figured by a speedometer that did not measure accurately, and was not meant to. All his costs—operations, repairs, upkeep—were calculated on a wrong basis. A wrong speedometer misleads on all these items.

Some car manufacturers justify this practice. They say it is just as well for a driver to think he is going 70 miles an hour when he is going only 62. Well, let that pass as to speed; does it justify telling every driver that he is getting more mileage out of his car than he really is? A speedometer measures speed AND mileage. Should it cheat on both?

Speeding up a clock cannot create more hours any more than speeding up a speedometer can create more miles. An hour is sixty minutes long. A mile is 5280 feet long. Ford mileage and Ford speed are accurately measured—they are there—you get them—no one gets more.

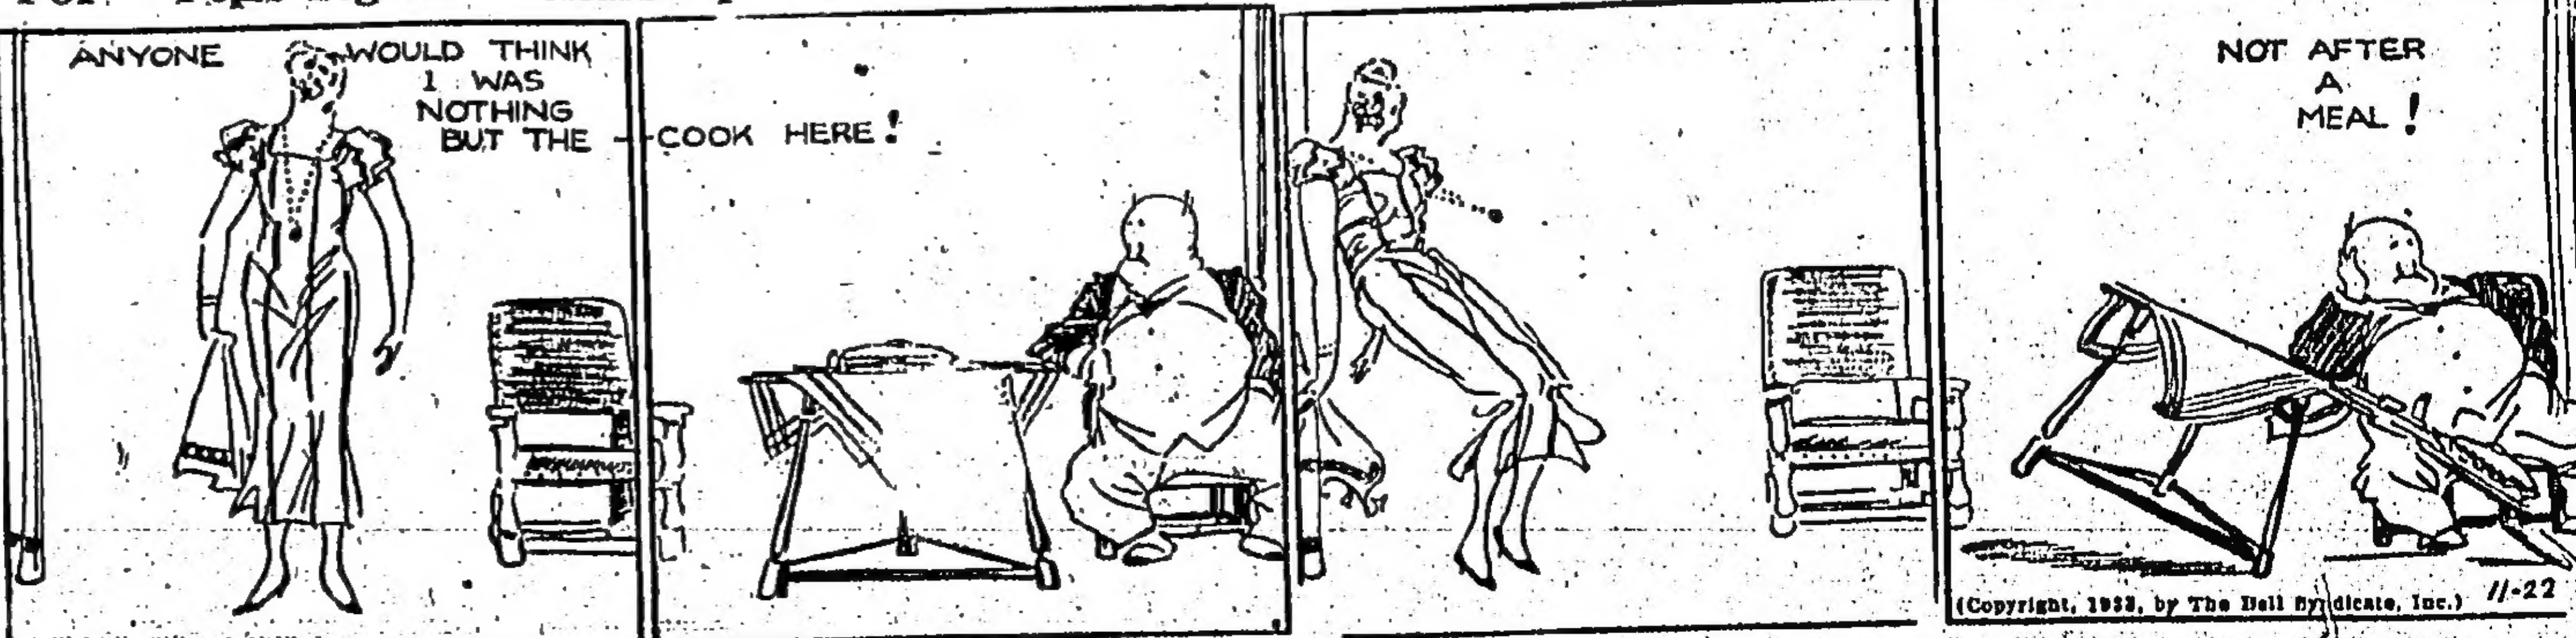

Anyone can buy speedometers and have them "fixed" any way he wants them. We deal with manufacturers who know our strict stand on accuracy and are glad to meet our specifications. The limit of variation in Ford speedometers, a limit that cannot be avoided in manufacture, is 2½ at 70 miles.

We get our speed and mileage out of our engine and wheels, not out of our speedometer.

"Be silent!" Thompson hissed. Geoffrey hesitated. He was under going a terrific struggle within. Thompson saw the hesitation and said, "All right. We will start with the old man. Watch both him and his daughter, Barracough. Remember you can save them whenever you like."

"Don't tell. I forbid you," called the missionary as four men ran forward and dragged him out into the middle of the room.

They seemed to know that to do, for they turned him over on his face and tore the clothes from off his back. One of them sat on his shoulders and another on his legs, holding him so that movement was impossible. Max walked across and stood at the missionary's head, while the other two Tibetans each seized a massive sjambok and took up their places one on either side of the helpless captive.

Max nodded, and one of these men raised his sjambok high above his head and brought it down with his full strength across the old man's loins. The man on the other side immediately followed suit, and two great cuts appeared in the quivering flesh.

"One!" called out Max.

Geoffrey could not bear it any longer. "Stop," he croaked, his lips too dry to frame words with ease.

The word had hardly been torn from him when there was the loud report of a rifle. Max spun round and fell in a twitching mass. Two more shots rang out, and both sjambok-wielders fell dead beside their chief.

There was a splintering of broken glass followed immediately by two metallic clangs and whinnings as a couple of Mill's bombs burst among the guard assembled at the door. Then Sher Khan dropped through the skylight into the hall.

The effect of the Pathan's sudden and dramatic intervention was instantaneous. The guards fled pell-mell through the door, some flinging away their arms in an excess of terror, while they left half a dozen of their number dead or dying on the floor. The two men who had been sitting on Mr. Merridew stared for a second in horrified amazement, and then bolted after the retreating guard. Thompson alone kept his head, and whipping out his ever-ready automatic, fired at Sher Khan as he landed on the floor. Once, twice—the shots cracked in quick succession, but the Pathan had dropped on his feet and his legs bent easily under him as he landed, and both bullets sped harmlessly over his head. Even as he touched the ground Sher Khan returned the "Tiger's" fire with his own .450 Colt. The tide of fortune now seemed to have turned in the captives' favour, for the shot turned out to be a marvel of good luck. Sher Khan had fired wholly by sense of direction, as a quick pistol-shot should, and his heavy bullet missed Thompson but hit his pistol, sending the weapon flying from his grasp and twisting it double.

Thompson then realised that Sher Khan had dropped between himself and the door of his den. He quickly doubled up and ran in a zigzag for the door through which his men had already retreated. Bang!

Bang! Bang! Sher Khan rapped out the shots one after another, but the "Tiger's" dodging tactics saved his life and he reached the passage unscathed.

The Pathan followed him to the door and fired two more ineffectual shots down the passage. Then he shut the door to and bolted it, and whipping out a knife began cutting Geoffrey's thongs.

"Ah, my colonel-sahib, I am in time! Allah be praised! Would that I had not shot so badly at the end!"

"Quick! The others!" Geoffrey could only speak at first, so cramped were his limbs by their long confinement. Sher Khan next liberated Phyllis and then her father. The Merridews had not been bound for so long as Geoffrey, and Phyllis recovered the use of her limbs first. She at once rushed to her father, who was struggling to his feet.

"Oh, my poor, brave dad! The brutes! Oh, the brutes! Let me have a rifle or pistol, too! Oh! father dear! Tell me they've not hurt you too much!"

"No, no, dear. I will be quite all right in a minute or two. At present I am a bit numbed that's all."

WINTER PROBLEMS Of The PEOPLE

SMASH colds, flu and rheumatic attacks with 'ASPRO' at the first signs, and solve the main problem of keeping the home free from these ills during the winter months. There is no quicker, safer, or more certain method to root winter health complaints than by taking 'ASPRO' according to directions. 'ASPRO' nips Cold—Flu and Rheumatic attacks in the bud because after ingestion in the system, it is an anti-pyretic or fever reducer—it is both a powerful germicide and solvent of uric acid—and is anti-periodic—antiseptic and anti-fermentative. For 17 years 'ASPRO' has proved itself the greatest antidote yet known for Colds, Influenza and Pain attacks. It is safe, sure and certain, and is now the most used medicine throughout the world. 'ASPRO' does not harm the heart or stomach—there are no dangerous after-effects, and it conforms to the standards of purity laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia—the guiding authority of the Medical profession.

'ASPRO' WILL GIVE QUICK RELIEF

5 MINUTES

FOR RELIEF WITH 'ASPRO'

There is nothing indefinite about 'ASPRO'. Its service is QUICK—safe, effective and definite. It gives you relief in 5 to 10 minutes and then goes on to dispel or dissolve the cause of the pain, allowing Nature to effect its own cure. Furthermore, you get no harmful after-effects from 'ASPRO', as it is speedily eliminated from the system a few hours after being taken. It neither dopes, deadens nor drags.

'ASPRO' BRINGS SWEET SLEEP TO THE SLEEPLESS

There are many thousands of people who now have sweet peaceful sleep, who hitherto hardly knew the meaning of a period of restfulness. 'ASPRO' has brought about the transformation by its sweet soothing influence on the nerves, and breaking up of local feverish conditions. Two tablets before retiring is the usual dose.

What 'ASPRO' Does:

- 1 It Stops Violent Head aches in 5 to 10 minutes
- 2 It Brings Sweet Sleep, to the Sleepless.
- 3 It Relieves Rheumatism in one night.
- 4 It Relieves Children's Growing Pains.
- 5 It Saves many a Sound Tooth by Removing Toothache.
- 6 It Brings Relief without causing sickness, indigestion or a craving.
- 7 It Stops Pain without harming the Heart.
- 8 It soothes away irritability

- 9 A hot lemon drink with 2 or 3 'ASPRO' Tablets will smash up a Cold or 'Flu' attack in one night.
- 10 It Reduces Temperature in 5 minutes.
- 11 It can be taken at any time, in Train, Train, at Home, at Business — anywhere — everywhere.
- 12 It gives the greatest relief ever known to women at their times of periodical depression.
- 13 It Stops the Ill After-Effects of Alcohol.
- 14 It Relieves Dengue and Malaria by reducing the fever.
- 15 As a Gargle, 'ASPRO' is wonderful for Sore Throats, Tonsillitis, etc.

'ASPRO' is Woman's Best Friend

Possibly the greatest users of 'ASPRO' are women, for whom 'ASPRO' has a special charm on account of its safety.

DUNDEE RETAINS BOXING TITLE

Callahan Beaten On Points.

ONE JUDGE VOTES FOR LOSER

Boston, Yesterday.
Vince Dundee, newly-crowned world middleweight boxing champion, retained his title against Andy Callahan, of Lawrence, Mass., last night when he was awarded a points decision after 15 grueling rounds.

Dundee, clever Italian boxer, won the title unexpectedly from Lou Brouillard less than a month ago. His brother, Joe Dundee, was formerly the welterweight champion.

Callahan, rushing the champion with hard rights and lefts to the body, led on points until the ninth round, but then tired subsequently when Dundee skillfully out-boxed the challenger, who was severely punished.

The last round witnessed a brilliant toe-to-toe duel, and at the conclusion the referee and one judge gave their verdict in favour of Dundee, but the second judge pronounced for Callahan.—Reuter.

FINANCIAL PINCH IN FUKIEN.

May Cause Collapse
Of Separatists.

Foochow, Yesterday.
Reuter reports that Mr.
Eugene Chen, Foreign Secretary of the Fukien Government, has announced that the Customs receipts of Fukien will be retained by the new Government.
The average monthly receipts
at Foochow are $225,000.
The new regime is already feeling a financial pinch. The tax on oil and gasoline has been increased while a tax on imported rice is to be imposed at the same rate as in Canton.
Foreign observers believe that financial difficulties will be as powerful an influence as military action in the collapse of the separatists. — Reuter's Pacific Service.

PILGRIMS LEAVE FOR SANCAN

Three Bishops On Board
Hai-Ning.

MARYKNOLL FLAG FLOWN AS VESSEL LEAVES

At two o'clock yesterday afternoon the Hai Ning, crowded with pilgrims, sailed from the Williamson Wharf, bound for Macao and Sancan Island, where rest the mortal remains of the great St.
Francis Xavier.

As the vessel drew away from the wharf the Bishop of Kongmoon, the Most Reverend James E. Walsh, under whose jurisdiction the pilgrimage is taking place, hoisted the Maryknoll flag, which consists of the coat-of-arms of the Catholic Foreign Mission of America. The flag was presented to the Mission
by Mr. S. T. Williamson, Managing Director of the Douglas Steamship Company.

Three Roman Catholic Bishops are accompanying the pilgrims; the Most Rev. James E. Walsh, Bishop of Kongmoon, the Most Rev. Henry Valtorta, Bishop of Hong Kong, and the Most Rev. Bonifacio Young,
Auxiliary Bishop of Canton.

While Bishop Henry Valtorta had arranged to give a special address last night on "St. Francis Xavier, Missionary" and altars have been erected on the ship at which Mass will be said, lighter entertainment for the pilgrims has not been neglected. A film entitled "The Miracles Of Goa" will be shown, accompanied by an address from Miss Jean Armstrong, other films of Australia and New Zealand have been lent by Mr. Williamson, and Hong Kong Amusements, Ltd. have provided a full programme, including news reels and comedies.

The Hai Ning is scheduled to return from Sancan Island tonight.
